There are at present a great many more ordinances on file in the office of City Clerk Hanley than what appear in codified form. If a citizen is desirous of acquainting himself with the provisions of a certain measure he will naturally seek his information in the ordinance book where such matters should be embodied. Not finding it there he is compelled to depend upon the courtesy of the clerk, and then a great deal of time is consumed in going over the hundreds of like documents before the right one is located.

Another matter that demands attention at the hands of those who have the authority to act is the fact that very many of the ordinances contained the present volume are superfluous. The measures with reference to the improvement of thoroughfares, according to the opinion of many good citizens, should be done away with. There are pages of space devoted to the establishment of grade lines and ordinances authorizing the improvement of streets in cases where the

On February 27, 1902, it will be city of East Liverpool were codified It was thought at first that the and published, and it is about time

> There are at present a great many more ordinances on file in the office of City Clerk Hanley than what appear in codified form. If a citizen is desirous of acquainting himself with the provisions of a certain measure he will naturally seek his information in the ordinance book where such matters should be embodied. Not finding it there he is compelled to depend upon the courtesy of the clerk, and then a great deal of time is consumed in going over the hundreds of like documents before the right one is located.

Another matter that demands attention at the hands of those who have the authority to act is the fact that very many of the ordinances contained the present volume are superfluous. The measures with reference to the improvement of thoroughfares, according to the opinion of many good citizens, should be done away with. There are pages of space devoted to the establishment of grade lines and ordinances authorizing the improvement of streets in cases where the work has been completed for years. In addition to this there are scores of laws appearing upon the ordinance book, which, if carried up, would not be sustained by any court in the coun-

Then there are measures that are not now nor never have been enforced. One of the most important of these reads as follows:

"Section 93. It shall be unlawful for any person or persons to erect or to begin to erect any dwelling or store room, or other buildings subject to taxation without informing the city clerk in what ward said building is to be located, whether brick or frame dwelling, or store room, or for what purpose said building is to be used, the probable cost of same and upon what lot or part of said lot said building is to be located, and obtain a permit as required in a previous section."

The above ordinance has been in existance for years, and not one person in every thousand takes the trouble to provide himself with a building permit when beginning the erection of a house. It is held by many that the ordinance does not go far enough-does not cover sufficient ground-and that it should provide for the appointment complied with.

> This is a matter, says the Buckeye tigation. The taxpayers of the county pay liberally for the care of the unfortunate poor, and they have a right to demand, and do demand, that the money shall be judiciously expended and the proper treatment accorded the unfortunates who have been compelled to accept the care of the public. The management of the infirmary should court the most rigid investigation if the story told is untrue, as their reputations and that of the county are at stake.

If the story told is true, there should be a change in the management of affairs at the infirmary so sudden and so complete as to surprise those guilty of such gross neglect and mismanagement. Let those whose duty it is move promptly in this matter, to the end that, if the management has been remiss in their duties, the necessary changes be made; and if it be found that the story related is untrue, those in control may be vindicated and the good name of the county protected.

named Samuel M. Bryan, a native of Cadiz, O., appointed to a clerkship in the postoffice department at Washington through the influence of the late John A. Bingham, received notice that his services were no longer needed. Incompetency was the reason given for his dismissal. When he looked over his stock in trade he found it consisted of something less than a hundred dollars in cash and-a great idea. A week later he was on his way to San Francisco, one good natured postal clerk after another allowing him to ride in the car.

On reaching San Francisco he secured a place as purser on a steamboat bound for Japan, and in due time found himself in Tokio. Once in Japan's chief city he proceeded without delay to put his great idea into execution. What he proposed was to perfect and put in operation in Japan a postal system modeled after that of the United States. Bryan found willing listeners among the high Japanese officials, and in due time was requested to prepare a prospectus of his system to be submitted to the mikado. Its value was at once recognized and its adoption ordered. He was placed at the head of the new department with a salary of $11,000 a year and entrusted with the negotiations of a postal treaty between Japan and the United States.

A few months later he was back in Washington as the envoy of the Japanese government, treating on equal terms with the man who had dismissed him for incompetency. The treaty. which was negotiated with skill and diplomacy, proved satisfactory to all concerned. Bryan remained some 15 years in the service of the Japanese government. He then returned to the United States a rich man.

It is interesting to conjecture what his career might have been had he not lost his place in the postoffice depart-

FOR THE SCHLEY COURT

Secretary Long Names Dewey, Bonham and Kimberly-Latter Acks to Be Excused.

Washington, July 26 .- The board of inquiry, which is to investigate the controversial points in connection with Rear Admiral Schley's conduct during the Spanish war, it thought, would be composed of Ad miral Dewey, president of the court, and Rear Admirals Lewis A. Kimberly and Andrew .E. K. Benham, as Secre tary Long had made these selections, but last night word came from West Newton, Mass., that Rear Admiral Kimberly, owing to ill health, would ask to be relieved from serving. Another member to take his place, there fore, will likely be appointed.

The court originally was completed by the selection as judge advocate of Commander John E. Pillsbury, who now is equipment officer of the Boston navy yard, which is under command of Rear Admiral Sampson, but late yesterday afternoon Secretary Long reconsidered his decision to appoint Pillsbury, and ask Sam C. Lemly, judge advocate general of the navy, if he would be willing to accept the position of judge advocate of the court of inquiry.

The court will meet at the navy department in Washington on Sept. 12.

The Hanoverton Record makes specific and detailed charges against the management of the county infirmary concerning the treatment recently action for several months, he was "covered with vermin, filth, bed bugs and body lice."

This is a matter, says the Buckeye tigation. The taxpayers of the coununfortunate poor, and they have a right to demand, and do demand, that the money shall be judiciously expended and the proper treatment accorded the unfortunates who have been compelled to accept the care of the public. The management of the infirmary should court the most rigid investigation if the story told is untrated by the heat yesterday while true, as their reputations and that of the county are at stake.

If the story told is true, there should be a change in the management of affairs at the infirmary so sudden and so complete as to surprise those guilty of such gross neglect and mismanagement. Let those whose duty it is move promptly in this matter, to the end that, if the management has been remiss in their duties, the necessary changes be made; and if it be found that the story related is untrue, those in control may be vindicated and the good name of the county protected.

FREAK IN PLANT LIFE

BIRCH TREE IN IOWA WHICH BEARS MULBERRIES.

It Is In the Garden of Frank Crowl, Formerly of This City, and Puzzles the Wise.

Frank Crowl now resides at Marshalltown, Ia. He formerly lived in East Liverpool, and for years was a well known editor. Of late he has been traveling for the East Liverpool pottery. The Marshalltown Reflector of recent date describes a freak in plant life which is growing in Mr. Crowl's garden. It says:

"Growing on the lawn northwest of the house are two ornamental shade trees, about twelve feet apart. One is white or silver birch, the other a mulberry tree. Both are bearing mulberries and in abundance. This is the strange part of the story, for a birch ree was never known to bear anything but leaves, nor to put forth any Liverpool people of the great work bloom, so far as we can learn. RICH AND INFLUENTIAL

Man Discharged By Uncle Sam As Incompetent Rose to High Position in Japan.

Thirty years ago a young man named Samuel M. Bryan, a native of Cadiz, O., appointed to a clerkship in the postoffice department at Washington through the influence of the late his services were no longer needed. In his dismissal. When he looked over his stock in trade he found it consisted of something less than a hundred dollars in cash and-a great A week later he was on his way to San Francisco, one good natured postal clerk after another allowing him to ride in the car.

On reaching San Francisco he secured a place as purser on a steam boat bound for Japan, and in due time found himself in Tokio. Once in Japan's chief city he proceeded without delay to put his great idea into execution. What he proposed was to perfect and put in operation in Japan a postal system modeled after that of the United States. Bryan found willing listeners among the high Japanese officials, and in due time was requested to prepare a prospectus of his system to be submitted to the mikado. Its value was at once recognized and its adoption ordered. He was placed at the head of the new department with a salary of $11,000 a year and entrusted with the negotiations of a postal treaty between Japan and the United States.

A few months later he was back in Washington as the envoy of the Japanese government, treating on equal terms with the man who had dismiss. ed him for incompetency. The treaty, which was negotiated with skill and diplomacy, proved satisfactory to all concerned. Bryan remained some 15 years in the service of the Japanese government. He then returned to the United States a rich man.

It is interesting to conjecture what his career might have been had he not

FOR THE SCHLEY COURT

Secretary Long Names Dewey, Bonham and Kimberly-Latter Acks to Be Excused.

Washington, July 26 .- The board of inquiry, which is to investigate the controversial points in connection with Rear Admiral Schley's conduct during the Spanish war, it wa thought, would be composed of Ad miral Dewey, president of the court, and Rear Admirals Lewis A. Kimberly and Andrew .E. K. Benham, as Secre tary Long had made these selections, last night word came from West Newton, Mass., that Rear Admiral Kimberly, owing to ill health, would ask to be relieved from serving. Another member to take his place, therefore, will likely be appointed.

The court originally was completed by the selection as judge advocate of Commander John E. Pillsbury, who now is equipment officer of the Boston navy yard, which is under com-mand of Rear Admiral Sampson, but late vesterday afternoon Secretary Long reconsidered his decision to appoint Pillsbury, and ask Sam C. Lemly, judge advocate general of the navy, if he would be willing to accept the position of judge advocate of the ignorant and ill-mannered man using profane and indecent language on the street, in the presence of a number of little girls, the reverend gentleman rushed from his study, seized him by the shoulders and shook him as a terrier would shake a rat. He did not stop at that, but kept hold of the offender, put him in a policeman's charge, and next morning appeared against him in police court, where a fine of $5 and costs was imposed.

There is such a thing as righteous indignation, and it frequently prompts praiseworthy actions. The course taken by Mr. Elder was doubtless far more effective in teaching a foul-mouthed man a lesson that he will remember than any amount of fatherly counsel would have been. It is the duty of good citizens to see that the laws are enforced, and prompt and energetic methods are often necessary, if one would obey the excellent counsel of General Grant and "let no guilty man escape." He did not stop at that, but kept hold of the offender, put him in a policeman's charge, and next morning appeared against him in police court, where a fine of $5 and costs was imposed.

There is such a thing as righteous indignation, and it frequently prompts praiseworthy actions. The course taken by Mr. Elder was doubtless far more effective in teaching a foul-mouthed man a lesson that he will remember than any amount of fatherly counsel would have been. It is the duty of good citizens to see that the laws are enforced, and prompt and energetic methods are often necessary, if one would obey the excellent counsel of General Grant and "let no guilty man escape." Steubenville, July 26.-Lucile Smith has filed a petition in the court of common pleas, praying for a divorce from Lewis C. Smith, on the grounds of extreme cruelty and gross neglect of duty. She alleges in her petition that they were married at Steubenville on February 24, 1900, and that while living at the home of her grandmother in August, 1900, the defendant threw a heavy brush at her, which missed her head and shattered a mirror; that he called her vile names and threatened to kill her; she further alleges that the defendant would get drunk and stay away from home, and that he kept company with another woman at Morgantown, W Va., representing himself to be a single man, and for over a year has refused to provide a living or furnish her with any support whatever.

Smith is from New Cumberland, and was formerly connected with the Consumers' Supply Co., of Steubenville. He is now connected with the car service of the Pennsylvania company at Braddock.

TO REORGANIZE THE BANK.

Seventh National Directors Decided Upon Plan-Grand Jury Investigating Failure.

New York, July 26.-With the federal grand jury in session on an investigation of their affairs, the board or directors of the Seventh National bank met and decided upon a plan for a reorganization of the defunct bank. The capital stock is to be increased from $500,000 to $2,500,000, and the additional issue of $2,000,000 in stock will be sold at $130 per share, with first purchase privilege to the present stockholders. The cash proceeds of the assessment on the existing stock and the sale of new stock will, it is claimed, pay all present obligations and completely restore solvency. Existing stockholders are to be required to pay the assessment ordered by the comptroller of the currency. Edwin R. Thomas, Edwin William Nelson Cromwell, Gould. Frank Ray, William H. Talor and Edmund K. Stalle have been constituted committee of subscribers, with plenary power to carry out the plan. The present directors and officers are required to tender their resignations and a majority under the new subscription will elect their successors. The plan is made binding upon all subscribers when 90 per cent of the new stock is subscribed and 80 per cent of the assessment is paid. United States District Attorney Henry L. Burnett says the plan to reorganize the Seventh National bank will not affect the investigation by the federal grand jury.

AGAINST SEVENTH NATIONAL.

Suit Brought For Cleveland Bank. Also Against Receiver.

New York, July 26.-Complaint was filed in the United States circuit court by Wing, Putnam & Burlingham, as counsel for the Coal and Iron National bank, of Cleveland, O., against the Seventh National bank and Forest Raynor, as receiver, to restrain them from paying the proceeds of certain drafts forwarded by the Cleveland bank on the day before the failure of the Seventh National bank. The complaint also prays that the defendants be restrained from intermingling these funds with other funds in their possession.

A Proclamation by the President Establishing Free Trade Between Island and United States.

Washington, July 26 .- The president issued his proclamation establishing free trade between Porto Ricci and the United States and declaring the organization of a civil government for the island. The proclamation is purely formal and only in the body of the resolutions adopted by the Porto Ricon legislature (heretofore published) does it appear that the island is set free commercially in commemoration of the anniversary of the planting of the American flag on the island.

The proclamation recites that the act of April 12, 1900 (otherwise known as the Foraker act), provided that whenever the Porto Ricon legislature has enacted and put into operation a system of local taxation to meet the peeds of the government and by resolution so notified the president, the latter shall issue a proclamation and all duties on goods passing between ite United States and Porto Rico thall cease. As the legislature has complied with that requirement of the act in terms set out in the resolutions which are quoted in full in the body of the proclamation, that document

Adjourned Session of Council Was Not Held, Owing to Absence of Members.

The adjourned session of council, which was to have been held last night, had to be called off owing to the failure of sufficient members being present to make a quorum. Those absent were President Nice and One of the Features of Young Messrs. Marshall, Barlow and Horwell. It is not probable that the solons will get together until the next regular meeting night.

The main object in calling the special session was for the purpose of passing the ordinance providing for the sale of bonds for the improvement of West Market and Kossuth streets and Pennsylvania avenue. It was the purpose to pass the ordinance at the last meeting of council, but because of the absence of members it had to be held over. Calcutta road property owners will also have to wait a while longer for the selection of the assessing board before they pal address last night before the ancan present their grievances and nual convention of the Young Peohave their assessments adjusted.

TO REORGANIZE THE BANK.

Seventh National Directors Decided Upon Plan-Grand Jury Investigating Failure.

New York, July 26.-With the federal grand jury in session on an investigation of their affairs, the board or directors of the Seventh National bank met and decided upon a plau for a reorganization of the defunct bank. The capital stock is to be increased from $500,000 to $2,500,000, and the additional issue of $2,000,000 in stock will be sold at $130 per share, with first purchase privilege to the present stockholders. The cash proceeds of the assessment on the existing stock and the sale of new stock will, it is claimed, pay all present obligations and completely restore solvency. Existing stockholders are to be required to pay the assessment ordered by the comptroller of the currency. Edwin R. Thomas, Edwin Gould, William Nelson Cromwell, Frank Ray, William H. Talor and Edmund K. Stalle have been constituted a committee of subscribers, with plenary power to carry out the plan.

The present directors and officers are required to tender their resignations and a majority under the new subscription will elect their successors. The plan is made binding upon all subscribers when 90 per cent of the new stock is subscribed and 80

United States District Attorney Henry L. Burnett says the plan to reorganize the Seventh National bank will not affect the investigation by the federal grand jury.

AGAINST SEVENTH NATIONAL. Suit Brought For Cleveland Bank.

Also Against Receiver.

New York, July 26,--Complaint was filed in the United States circuit court by Wing, Putnam & Burlingham, as counsel for the Coal and Iron National bank, of Cleveland, O., against the Seventh National bank and Forest Raynor, as receiver, to restrain them from paying the proceeds of certain drafts forwarded by the Cleveland bank on the day before the failure of the Seventh National bank. The complaint also prays that the defendants be restrained from intermingling these funds with other funds in their possession.

A Proclamation by the President Es tablishing Free Trade Between Island and United States.

Washington, July 26 .- The president issued his proclamation establishing free trade between Porto Ricos and the United States and declaring. the organization of a civil government for the island. The proclamation is purely formal and only in the body of the resolutions adopted by the Porto Ricon legislature (heretofore published) does it appear that the island is set free commercially in commemoration of the anniversary of planting of the American flag on the island The proclamation recites that the act of April 12, 1900 (otherwise known as the Foraker act), provided that whenever the Porto Ricon legislature has enacted and put into operation a system of local taxation to meet the needs of the government and by resolution so notified the president, the latter shall issue a proclamation and all duties on goods passing between ite United States and Porto Rico thall cease. As the legislature has complied with that requirement of the act in terms set out in the resolutions which are quoted in full in the body of the proclamation, that document says: "Therefore, I, William McKinley, president of the United States, in pursuance of the provisions of law above quoted and upon the foregoing due notification, do hereby issue this my proclamation, and do declare and make known that a civil government for Porto Rico has been organized in accordance with the provisions of the said act of congress.

"And I do further declare and make known that the legislative assembly of Porto Rico has enacted and put into operation a system of local taxation to meet the necessities of the government of Porto Rico."

The Story of a Soldier's Struggle

By Brigadier General Charles King

Copyright, 1901, by Charles King ******************************

CHAPTER IX.-Continued.

The air was crisp, keen and sharply cold, but there was no wind, and he never seemed to feel the lack of an overcoat. His old cutaway was a handsome, stylish garment when first it came to him three years agone, but buttons and buttonholes were straining now as he filled his lungs with the ozone and oxygen of that rare, exhilarating atmosphere. The shops at the street corners at first were brilliantly lighted, and the bridge over the Red Water was lively with sleighs, street cars and pedestrians hurrying homeward. It was she who had turned southward as they left the hotel at the ladies' door, and it made no difference to him. His habitat was the north side-the yards of the Big Horn-but she had chosen the opposite direction, away from what might be called the residence side of the city.

"It is a fad of mine," she said. "I like to see as much as I can of every place I visit, and I've never been on the other side."

"Nor I," he answered. "Being a Big Horner now, my work keeps me at our yards all day."

"Do you like it?" she asked after a moment's pause.

"It is interesting and exacting," he replied, guiding her carefully over a broken cross walk. The streets seemed neglected hereabout. There was a saloon on every corner and a knot of loafers at almost every saloon.

"I'm almost sorry you chose this route, Miss Grahame," he continued. noting the curious looks that were bent upon him and his companion; noting, too, an occasional elbow nudge among the loiterers.

"The Seattle side doesn't seem to be the better side, does it?" she answered, half laughing. "But, then, I've twice been to your station and the scene of to see what was left of the Seattle. Oh, Mr. Langdon, I'm afraid there's stant Langdon's voice rang down the wide thoroughfare in the old time powerful, commanding tones she had heard on the parade at Pawnee. "This way, D battery! Lively! This way!" Then followed, "Stand here just one minute. Miss Grahame." And with that he sprang from her side. She saw him launch into the fray with the leap of a panther, lithe, supple, quick as a cat. She saw the lightning blows that sent two of the brutal assailants crashing their full length on the sidewalk, saw him whirl upon the third, who darted back into the saloon, and the next instant an impressive tableau under the sputtering electric light - Langdon, bareheaded, spare and athletic, with clinching fists gazing down at two bewildered ruffians slowly struggling to their feet; a young battery man, blood covered and feeble, clinging to the lamppost; a barkeeper in shirt sleeves. with two or three satellites peering out from the doorway, and two stalwart soldiers, just arrived, facing their former officer and, with the instinct of long habit, standing at the salute.

Five minutes later the rescued battery man was being led away by hi comrades, and a street car was conveying the rescuer and his fair, pale faced, silent companion back to the hotel.

"Keep your eye open for those fellows after this night's work," whispered the policeman who had escorted them to the crossing; but Langdon paid little heed, for presently Ethel spoke.

"You must let me mend that coat at once, Mr. Langdon," said she, and, glancing down, he saw that the swelling muscles had burst both buttonholes at the chest, and the old cutaway was a wreck indeed.

Joseph Bishop, secretary of the Ohio board of arbitration, is active in the interest of peace. He is said to have taken the matter to Senator Mark hanna, fortified with concise statements of both sides of the question. The public utterances of President Shaffer regarding the mediation of the Ohio board, together with personal letters of Mr. Shaffer to Mr. Bishop on the same subject, are accompanying the other papers, and the hope that Senator Hanna would find it possible to bring about another conference between the contestants is said to be one of the expressio - that Mr. Shafter has made in writing to Mr. Bishop. As to the conference which President Shaffer and Secretary John Williams, of the association, attended on Tuesday night, it is said that it had a direct bearing on this subject. That the result was satisfactory is judged from the excelient mood in which the two officials were found immediately after the meeting was over. Since that time the Amalgamated association officials have shown no signs of carrying out their threat to call out all the union Attention has been given entirely to the handling of the strike within its present scope, and the tendencies of the men to become troublesome or loisterous have been promptly checked by President Shaffer, even when excitement has been running high at some points.

President Shaffer was in a more hopeful mood yesterday than he has been for some time. He declared that he was perfectly satisfied with his personal inspection of the condiwithout some semblance of a military tions in Wellsville and apprehended salute. These were the members of the no difficulty in keeping his men in Brentwood rifles, officially known as line in that place. He continues in his position of firmly demanding the recognition of his union in the nonunion mills.

Judging from statements made among the manufacturers yesterday, the attitude of the trust has not been altered in the least. It was said the companies could not afford to treat with the Amalgamated association any further on the basis of their original demands.

Explained Visit to Wellsville.

Regarding his hurried trip to Wellsville on Wednesday, President Shaffer said that he had read the details of his movements in the papers with a good deal of amusement, especially concerning the disguise he wore. He positively denied that he had put on hob-nailed boots and stained his hands and face, or that he had worn an old shirt and hat and fixed himself up in the fantastic garb that was outlined. He said that he went to Wellsville alone. He had taken procautions to conceal his identity by wearing his winter clothing-the same suit that he wore last winter. He also wore a black derby hat and his ordinary shoes. He said that he was not so anxious to hide his identity as to go to all the trouble that had been said, but he had learned that the American Sheet Steel company had decided to send down some non-union men from Leechburg to the Wellsville mills, and he was anxious for one thing to get down there and warn his men not to create any disturbance. There was another reason that he went there for, but that he could not talk about. He had no other per son with him, and rode to Wellsville on the same train as the five nonunion men who went to the Wellsville mills. When he got there he saw those of whom he wanted to see and departed soon after.

The air was crisp, keen and sharply cold, but there was no wind, and he never seemed to feel the lack of an overcoat. His old cutaway was a handsome, stylish garment when first it came to him three years agone, but buttons and buttonholes were straining now as he filled his lungs with the ozone and oxygen of that rare, exhilarating atmosphere. The shops at the street corners at first were brilliantly lighted, and the bridge over the Red Water was lively with sleighs, street cars and pedestrians hurrying homeward. It was she who had turned southward as they left the hotel at the ladies' door, and it made no difference to him. His habitat was the north side-the yards of the Big Horn-but she had chosen the opposite direction, away from what might be called the residence side of the city.

"It is a fad of mine," she said. "I like to see as much as I can of every place I visit, and I've never been on the other side."

"Nor I," he answered. "Being a Big Horner now, my work keeps me at ou: yards all day."

"Do you like it?" she asked after a moment's pause.

"It is interesting and exacting," he replied, guiding her carefully over a broken cross walk. The streets seemed neglected hereabout. There was a saloon on every corner and a knot of loafers at almost every saloon.

"I'm almost sorry you chose this route, Miss Grahame," he continued. noting the curious looks that were bent upon him and his companion; noting, too, an occasional elbow nudge among the loiterers.

But the Mill Management Announces Its Intention of Starting the Plant in Full on Monday-Pickets Keep? ing Careful Watch on Trains.

It was a quiet night in Wellsville though the air was full of rumors. Word came from Pittsburg yesterday that 10 non-union men would be on the 3 p. m. train and a large crowd gathered at the depot to meet them. A committee of 50 men was sent to the rolling mill to see that no nonunion men entered the mill and the others stayed at the depot. > There are at present a great many more ordinances on file in the office of City Clerk Hanley than what appear in codified form. If a citizen is desirous of acquainting himself with the provisions of a certain measure he will naturally seek his information in the ordinance book where such matters should be embodied. Not finding it there he is compelled to depend upon the courtesy of the clerk, and then a great deal of time is consumed in going over the hundreds of like documents before the right one is located.

Another matter that demands attention at the hands of those who have the authority to act is the fact that very many of the ordinances contained the present volume are superfluous. The measures with reference to the improvement of thoroughfares, according to the opinion of many good citizens, should be done away with. There are pages of space devoted to the establishment of grade lines and ordinances authorizing the improvement of streets in cases where the work has been completed for years.

In addition to this there are scores of laws appearing upon the ordinance book, which, if carried up, would not be sustained by any court in the coun-

This is a matter, says the Buckeye State, which urgently demands investy pay liberally for the care of the unfortunate poor, and they have a right to demand, and do demand, that the money shall be judiciously expended and the proper treatment accorded the unfortunates who have been compelled to accept the care of the public. The management of the infirmary should court the most rigid investigation if the story told is untrue, as their reputations and that of the county are at stake.

If the story told is true, there should be a change in the management of affairs at the infirmary so sudden and so complete as to surprise those guilty of such gross neglect and mismanagement. Let those whose duty it is move promptly in this matter, to the end that, if the management has been remiss in their duties, the necessary changes be made: and if it be found that the story related is untrue, those in control may be vindicated and the good name of the county protected.

FREAK IN PLANT LIFE

BIRCH TREE IN IOWA WHICH BEARS MULBERRIES.

It Is In the Garden of Frank Crowl, Formerly of This City, and Puzzles the Wise.

Frank Crowl now resides at Marshalltown, Ia. He formerly lived in East Liverpool, and for years was a well known editor. Of late he has been traveling for the East Liverpool pottery. The Marshalltown Reflector of recent date describes a freak in plant life which is growing in Mr. Crowl's garden. It says:

"Growing on the lawn northwest of the house are two ornamental shade trees, about twelve feet apart. One is white or silver birch, the other a mulberry tree. Both are bearing mulberries and in abundance. This is the strange part of the story, for a birch tree was never known to bear anything but leaves, nor to put forth any Liverpool people of the great work bloom, so far as we can learn. RICH AND INFLUENTIAL

Man Discharged By Uncle Sam As Incompetent Rose to High Position in Japan.

Thirty years ago a young man named Samuel M. Bryan, a native of Cadiz. O., appointed to a clerkship in the postoffice department at Washington through the influence of the late John A. Bingham, received notice that his services were no longer needed. Incompetency was the reason given for his dismissal. When he looked over his stock in trade he found it consisted of something less than a hundred dollars in cash and-a great idea. A week later he was on his way to San Francisco, one good natured postal clerk after another allowing him to ride in the car.

On reaching San Francisco he secured a place as purser on a steamboat bound for Japan, and in due time found himself in Tokio. Once in Japan's chief city he proceeded without delay to put his great idea into execution. What he proposed was to perfect and put in operation in Japan a postal system modeled after that of the United States. Bryan found willing listeners among the high Japanese officials, and in due time was requested to prepare a prospectus of his system to be submitted to the mikado. Its value was at once recognized and its adoption ordered. He was placed at the head of the new department with a salary of $11,000 a year and entrusted with the negotiations of a postal treaty between Japan and the United States

A few months later he was back in Washington as the envoy of the Japanese government, treating on equal terms with the man who had dismissed him for incompetency. The treaty, which was negotiated with skill and diplomacy, proved satisfactory to all concerned. Bryan remained some 15 years in the service of the Japanese government. He then returned to the United States a rich man.

It is interesting to conjecture what his career might have been had he not lost his place in the postoffice department.

FOR THE SCHLEY COURT

Secretary Long Names Dewey, Bonham and Kimberly-Latter Acks to Be Excused.

Washington, July 26 .- The board of inquiry, which is to investigate the controversial points in connection with Rear Admiral Schley's conduct during the Spanish war, it wa thought, would be composed of Ad miral Dewey, president of the court and Rear Admirals Lewis A. Kimberly and Andrew .E. K. Benham, as Secre tary Long had made these selections, but last night word came from West Newton, Mass., that Rear Admiral Kimberly, owing to ill health, would ask to be relieved from serving. Another member to take his place, therefore, will likely be appointed.

The court originally was completed by the selection as judge advocate of Commander John E. Pillsbury, who now is equipment officer of the Boston navy yard, which is under command of Rear Admiral Sampson, but late yesterday afternoon Secretary Long reconsidered his decision to appoint Pillsbury, and ask Sam C Lemly, judge advocate general of the navy, if he would be willing to accept the position of judge advocate of the ourt of inquiry.

The court will meet at the navy de partment in Washington on Sept. 12

THE FARMER'S PROGRESS.

The American manufacturer is attracting the world's attention by his people would have longed for it in pottery, have given in their two enterprise and the excellence of his vain. products. New markets have opened for him until goods made in this country now reach the ends of the earth, and the demand for them is steadily growing. But the manufacturers are not the only enterprising Americans. The unostentatious but progressive farmer is making his influence felt.

The standard of our agriculture is over. We are learning to make beet cemetery. sugar in competition with Germany and wine in competition with France. Tobacco grown on American soil has and most important of human occupations.

A SIGN OF THE TIMES.

It looks as if ex-Governor Robert The Akron China Company E. Pattison, of Pennsylvania, were being groomed by the conservative element of the Democratic party as a just received at Schmidt's Cash Gropossible dark horse to run in the pres- cery. idential race of 1904. As a step toward the reorganization of the party in Philadelphia - where Democrats are about as numerous, in proportion to the population, as they are in East Liverpool-the ex-governor was unanimously elected to the chairmanship of the city committee. This shows how the Bryan forces, who have had their own way in Pennsylvania for the past four years, as they have in Ohio, are losing ground. Ex-Governor Pattison is a sound money man, as well as an expansionist. He has never been in sympathy with Bryanism. His restoration to a position of importance in party councils in the great state of Pennsylvania is significant evidence of a wonderful change in public sentiment and is another proof TO THE VOTERS OF COLUMBIANA that the friends of the Nebraskan are being crowded into cold and outer Several persons were witnesses to morning by an Italian woman who lives on West Market street, north of Seventh. The woman is the mother of several children, among them being two boys aged about 7 and 10 years. The two became engaged in a the dispute by unmercifully whipping the younger boy.

Seizing a heavy piece of rope she neighbors, who were alarmed by the child's screams, were about to interfere. She then procured a clothes line which she rapped around the boy's body and then pushed him headlong in a small, dark room. This took place at about 9 o'clock and at noon the child was yet locked in the room. Persons who witnessed the affair are very indignant, and it is probable the

MEETING CALLED OFF

Adjourned Session of Council Was Not Held, Owing to Absence of Members.

The adjourned session of council, which was to have been held last night, had to be called off owing to the failure of sufficient members being present to make a quorum. Those absent were President Nice and One of the Features of Young Messrs. Marshall, Barlow and Horwell. It is not probable that the solons will get together until the next regular meeting night.

The main object in calling the special session was for the purpose of passing the ordinance providing for the sale of bonds for the improvement of West Market and Kossuth streets and Pennsylvania avenue. It was the purpose to pass the ordinance at the last meeting of council, but because of the absence of members it had to be held over. Calcutta road property owners will also have to wait a while longer for the selection of the assessing board before they can present their grievances and have their assessments adjusted.

A Proclamation by the President Establishing Free Trade Between Island and United States.

Washington, July 26 .- The president issued his proclamation establishing free trade between Porto Ricco and the United States and declaring the organization of a civil government for the island. The proclamation is purely formal and only in the body of the resolutions adopted by the Porto Ricon legislature (heretofore published) does it appear that the island is set free commercially in commemoration of the anniversary of the planting of the American flag on the

The proclamation recites that the act of April 12, 1900 (otherwise known as the Foraker act), provided that whenever the Porto Ricon legislature has enacted and put into operation a system of local taxation to meet the needs of the government and by resolution so notified the president, the latter shall issue a proclamation and all duties on goods passing between ite United States and Porto Rico rhall cease. As the legislature has complied with that requirement of the act in terms set out in the resolutions which are quoted in full in the body of the proclamation, that document says: "Therefore, I, William McKinley, president of the United States, in pursuance of the provisions of law above quoted and upon the foregoing due notification, do hereby issue this my proclamation, and do declare and make known that a civil government for Porto Rico has been organized in accordance with the provisions of the said act of congress.

"And I do further declare and make known that the legislative assembly of Porto Rico has enacted and put into operation a system of local taxation to meet the necessities of the government of Porto Rico."

Ten Years' Trial

The Story of a Soldier's Struggle

By Brigadier General Charles King

The air was crisp, keen and sharply cold, but there was no wind, and he never seemed to feel the lack of an overcoat. His old cutaway was a handsome, stylish garment when first it came to him three years agone, but buttons and buttonholes were straining now as he filled his lungs with the ozone and oxygen of that rare, exhilarating atmosphere. The shops at the street corners at first were brilliantly lighted, and the bridge over the Red Water was lively with sleighs, street cars and pedestrians hurrying homeward. It was she who had turned southward as they left the hotel at the ladies' door, and it made no difference to him. His habitat was the north side-the yards of the Big Horn-but she had chosen the opposite direction, away from what might be called the residence side of the city.

"It is a fad of mine," she said. "I like to see as much as I can of every place I visit, and I've never been on the other side."

"Nor I." he answered. "Being a Big Horner now, my work keeps me at our yards all day."

"Do you like it?" she asked after a moment's pause. "It is interesting and exacting." he replied, guiding her carefully over a broken cross walk. The streets seemed neglected hereabout. There was a saloon on every corner and a knot of loafers at almost every saloon.

"I'm almost sorry you chose this route, Miss Grahame," he continued. noting the curious looks that were bent upon him and his companion; noting. too, an occasional elbow nudge among the loiterers.

Then followed, "Stand here just one minute, Miss Grahame." And with that he sprang from her side. She saw him launch into the fray with the leap of a panther, lithe, supple, quick as a cat. She saw the lightning blows that sent two of the brutal assailants crashing their full length on the sidewalk, saw him whirl upon the third, who darted back into the saloon, and the next instant an impressive tableau under the sputtering electric light - Langdon, bareheaded, spare and athletic, with clinching fists gazing down at two bewildered ruffians slowly struggling to their feet; a young battery man, blood covered and feeble, clinging to the lamppost; a barkeeper in shirt sleeves, with two or three satellites peering out from the doorway, and two stalwart soldiers, just arrived, facing their former officer and, with the instinct of long habit, standing at the salute.

Five minutes later the rescued battery man was being led away by hi comrades, and a street car was conveying the rescuer and his fair, pale faced. silent companion back to the hotel.

"Keep your eye open for those fellows after this night's work," whispered the policeman who had escorted them to the crossing; but Langdon paid little heed, for presently Ethel spoke. "You must let me mend that coat at once, Mr. Langdon," said she, and, glancing down, he saw that the swelling muscles had burst both buttonholes at the chest, and the old cutaway was a wreck indeed.

....... CHAPTER X. Three days more, and Melville was pronounced well enough to travel, and Langdon was alone. The first flush of enthusiasm over, his exploits had died out. The populace of Brentwood had settled down to its usual routine, and but for some scores of unemployed men and a gang of troublesome tramps infesting the outskirts little was left in the town itself to recall the excitement and turmoil of the days of the strike. Over in the yard of the Seattle masons and carpenters by the dozen were busily at work, nearly all of them local craftsmen. The ill wind that whirled the Seattle's thousands up in smoke and flame was blowing modest hundreds into the pockets of Brentwood's artisans and through them to the cof-Big Horn might be the better managed road in some respects, said Brentwood, but the Seattle brings the money. Bar- It is Said He Will Not Make Overclay's banquet had turned many a head and not a few hearts among the municipal leaders, and Barclay's dollars were potent among the people. The regulars had gone home over the Seattle, the guardsmen had preceded them over the Big Horn, and the roads had returned to the guardianship of their own watchman and Brentwood's police. The sheriff had discharged his extra deputies, and Eric Langdon, beginning the world over again on a modest salary, took counsel with himself self, there is said to be the best of non-union men being taken there. in the absence of other advisers and planned his daily life. Explained Visit to Wellsville. Regarding his hurried trip to Wells on Wednesday, President Shaffer said that he had read the details of his movements in the papers with a good deal of amusement, especially concerning the disguise he wore. He positively denied that he had put on hob-nailed boots and stained his hands and face, or that he had worn an old shirt and hat and fixed himself up in the fantastic garb that was out He said that he went to Wellsville alone. He had taken procautions to conceal his identity by wearing his winter clothing-the ame suit that he wore last winter He also wore a black derby hat and his ordinary shoes. He said that he vas not so anxious to hide his identity s to go to all the trouble that had been said, but he had learned that the American Sheet Steel company had decided to send down some non-union men from Leechburg to the Wellsville mills, and he was anxious for one thing to get down there and warn his men not to create any disturbance. There was another reason that he went there for, but that he could not talk about. He had no other per son with him, and rode to Wellsville on the same train as the five nonunion men who went to the Wellsville mills. When he got there he saw hose of whom he wanted to see and departed soon after.
